

Your goals

It is great to have goals regarding your guitar play. Goals give you a straight direction for your practice. And a direct way for your practice will make it much easier for you to take the next step, grab your guitar and have a guitar session.

If you do not have a goal, it is difficult to improve. Because in which direction do you really want to go?

Do you want to play a special song? Or even two? Do you want to play a special music style or do you want to have super fast fingers when playing guitar? Or everything at once?

All of these are goals.

You can achieve everything, but everything at once might be difficult... That's why it's important that you determine your next aims at the guitar. This will make it much easier. Start with a goal that really sounds attractive to you. Right away we will approach the questions!

List everything that comes into your mind.

There are no wrong answers. Furthermore it does not matter how realistic or unrealistic the answers appear to you and if you really believe that you can achieve this. The replies to the questions are only for you! (If you want, you are welcome to share your replies with me. But actually it is about setting your goals.)

You can write down as much as you want regarding every question. If you do not have enough space here, just get another sheet of paper before stopping or shortening your answers because lack of space.

Questions

- 1. Which songs would you like to play, if no song would be too difficult for you? (Describe the song and version as concrete as possible. Example: Enter Sandman in the original version by Metallica in this YouTube video...)
- 2. Where would you like to play, if you could fill any stage? (Describe your answer as concrete as possible - number of spectators, location, room size, support artist...)
- 3. Which techniques would you like to master on your guitar? (For example: Play massive solos, be able to improvise, read music sheets...)
- 4. Which music styles would you like to play? (Rock'n'Roll, Pop, Jazz, classic songs, Heavy Metal, Blues, Country ...)

Your way

Now spontaneously choose (after having replied to the questions) three answers that you want to achieve in the next six months.

Then reflect on the following: „What is the next step I should take now to get closer to this goal?“

Take this step within one week and then approach the next step.

It is important that the steps are just as big that you can realize it within one week.

Really try to be realistic!

The steps will be quite small. But do not forget that it is these small steps that bring a mountain climber to the summit of a mountain.

Good luck and have fun!
